

Dark Horse (2026 film)

Dark Horse is a 2026 American biographical drama film directed by Cyrus Nowrasteh, who co-wrote the screenplay with Mark Nowrasteh, based on a story by Mário Frias. It follows the political career of former President of Brazil Jair Bolsonaro during the 2018 presidential election and a subsequent stabbing attack. Jim Caviezel stars as Bolsonaro alongside Marcus Ornellas, Sérgio Barreto and Eddy Finlay.

Premise

The film chronicles the political ascension of Jair Bolsonaro during his 2018 presidential campaign, focusing on his assassination attempt in Juíz de Fora, Minas Gerais.^{[1][2]} It portrays Bolsonaro as an electoral "dark horse", chronicling his hospital recovery, electoral debates and his marriage to Michelle de Paula. It includes a flashback scene portraying a young Bolsonaro as a Brazilian Army officer taking part in military operations targeting drug trafficking.^{[1][2][3][4]}

The plot suggests that Bolsonaro had been a target of a conspiracy between left-wing groups and criminal organizations. Besides the attack perpetrated by Adélio Barba,^[a] the story includes other supposed assassination attempts occurred while Bolsonaro recovers at the hospital. A fictional antagonist is introduced, portraying an influential drug dealer that Bolsonaro had helped arrest in his Army years.^{[1][2]} According to newspaper Metrópoles, the screenplay mentions action scenes set in the Amazon rainforest, involving a battle between drug cartels, indigenous peoples and shamans.^[5]

Production

Development

Dark Horse was directed by Iranian-American filmmaker Cyrus Nowrasteh from a screenplay he co-wrote with his son Mark Nowrasteh, based on "Capitão do Povo" (lit. 'People's Captain'), a story by São Paulo congressman Mário Frias, who was appointed Secretary of Culture in the first Bolsonaro administration.^{[9][10]} The production is headed by Eduardo Verástegui, known for producing Sound of Freedom.^{[11][12]}

Filming

Filming began in October 2025 at Indianópolis Hospital in São Paulo.^[11] Actor Jim Caviezel, known for portraying Jesus Christ in The Passion of the Christ, spent approximately three months in Brazil filming in different regions before filming moved to the United States and Mexico.^[8] One of the locations was the Latin America Memorial in São Paulo, between 19 and 22 November 2025, with a payment of R$125,921.36 to the State Government of São Paulo for image usage rights.^[13]

The film was entirely shot in English, aiming to reach an international audience by reconstructing the political career of Bolsonaro, who was tried and convicted of the coup d'état attempt and is currently imprisoned.^[14] According to the newspaper O Globo, at least 14 extras who took part in the filming filed lawsuits to the alleging "humiliating" working conditions and having been surprised by the pro-Bolsonaro theme of the film. The allegations, corroborated by several complaints filed by the Artists' Union of São Paulo (Sated-SP), include assaults against an extra, delayed payments, the provision of spoiled food, abusive restrictions on toilet use—allowed only in groups and under supervision—and ostentatious cell phone seizure. The chairwoman of Sated SP, Rita Teles, stated that the seriousness of the situation led the union to contact the Ministry of Labour and Employment, which did not respond in a timely manner.^{[15][16]}

Controversies

2026 financing scandal

On 10 December 2025, Intercept Brasil revealed that, in 2024, a non-governmental organization (NGO) belonging to Karina Ferreira da Gama, the owner of GoUp Entertainment and one of the film's executive producers, signed a R$108 million contract with the City Hall of São Paulo to provide Wi-Fi service to low-income communities in the city.^[17] The next day, several São Paulo city councilors filed complaints to the state's Public Prosecutor's Office, requesting an investigation into the responsibility of the mayor of São Paulo, Ricardo Nunes, the suspension of contracts signed with the city hall and the investigation of possible irregularities in the bidding process for da Gama's NGO.^[18]

In May 2026, Intercept Brasil reported that senator Flávio Bolsonaro had negotiated funding for Dark Horse with banker Daniel Vorcaro, the former head of Banco Master, who was under investigation in the Banco Master fraud case. According to the report, Flávio sought up to R$134 million (2025) (US$23.96 million) for the film, and at least R$61 million was allegedly transferred between February and May 2025 through intermediary structures, including Entre Investimentos e Participações and the Texas-based Havengate Development Fund LP, which was described as linked to allies of Eduardo Bolsonaro.^{[19][20][21]} For comparison, the 2025 Oscar-winning Brazilian film I'm Still Here had a budget of EUR7.6 million (2024) (US$8.23 million) and The Secret Agent, EUR4.7 million (2025) (US$5.3 million).^{[22][23]}

Flávio Bolsonaro initially denied the report, but later acknowledged having sought private sponsorship from Vorcaro for what he described as a private film about his father. He denied offering advantages, receiving money or using public funds, stating that there had been "zero" public money or Lei Rouanet funding involved.^{[25][26]} The production company and Mário Frias denied that funds from Vorcaro or Banco Master had reached the production.^[27]

On 15 May 2026, further reporting based on contracts and messages stated that Eduardo Bolsonaro, Flávio Bolsonaro's brother, had served as an executive producer on the film and had responsibilities related to financing strategy, investor materials and fundraising. The reports said the documents contradicted Eduardo's statement that he had merely licensed image rights for the project.^{[28][29]} Opposition lawmakers subsequently filed a criminal representation with the Prosecutor General's Office and the Federal Police requesting an investigation into Flávio Bolsonaro, Eduardo Bolsonaro, Jair Bolsonaro, Vorcaro, and others over the alleged funding arrangements.^[27]

Although Flávio Bolsonaro claims the money is a private investment with the use of no public funds, the Federal Police continues to investigate a nation-wide scheme where Master intentionally lead institutions and pensions to invest in toxic and unsupported funds, generating public losses in the tens of millions of dollars.^[30] It is widely believed by journalists that

Brother, I preferred to send you an audio here so you can listen to it calmly. ... Despite you giving us the freedom, Daniel, to press you [for payment], I feel awkward keep pressing you, okay? But anyway... It's because we are at a very decisive moment here with the film and, since there are many overdue installments, man, everyone is tense and I'm worried about the opposite effect of what we envisioned for the movie, right? ... So, if you could give me a heads-up, a position, Daniel, because we need to know what to do, man, with our lives, because there are many... there are already many bills to pay this month

Flávio Bolsonaro was aware of this at the time of negotiations, as he and Vorcaro had a modus operandi of exchanging one time view messages via WhatsApp.^[31]

Crew complaints

Brazilian media outlets also reported complaints from extras regarding working conditions on set, including low daily payments, alleged spoiled food and restrictions during filming.^{[32][33]}

Criticism

Brazilian media outlets also labeled the film as propaganda, focusing on the upcoming Brazilian general election in late 2026. Bolsonaro, who was tried and convicted of a coup d'état attempt and is currently imprisoned, endorsed his elder son Flávio Bolsonaro to the presidential race. Flávio Bolsonaro has been using the film as a platform to the family's political ideology (Bolsonarism).^[34] By late May 2026, Lula supporters had formally filled a complain to the Superior Electoral Court intending to prevent the film's release in the country until the elections take place.^[35] and next month too. And now that it's the home stretch, we can't... we can't slip up, we can't fail to honor the commitments here, because otherwise we lose everything, man: the whole contract, we lose actors, we lose the director, we lose the crew, we lose everything. If you could give me a shout, brother. Sorry for the long audio, okay?

—Flávio Bolsonaro, in an audio message sent to Daniel Vorcaro, demanding money for the completion of the film Dark Horse^{[17][24]}

Marketing

On 7 December 2025, Carlos Bolsonaro published on X, formerly Twitter, a photo beside Jim Caviezel characterized as Bolsonaro in the filming set.^[36] On the following day, congressman Mário Frias published a teaser video with scenes of the former president political career, including his acting as a congressman, the wedding to Michelle and the 2018 attack. Frias is also shown acting as one of the doctors who took part on the surgery. Flávio and Carlos Bolsonaro were also present during some shootings, mainly in São Paulo.^[14]

After the publishing of the teaser, the team of American singer Beyoncé has reportedly filed legal action requesting the removal of the song "Survivor" by Destiny's Child, which the artist was part of. According to Anderson Nick, project manager of BeyGood—non-profit financial organization funded by Beyoncé and responsible for its operation in Brazil—the track was used without proper authorization and "legal measures are already being taken to have it taken off the air as quickly as possible".^[37]

Release

The film was screened for distributors at the Fraud Fighter Summit in Las Vegas on 15 June 2026.^{[38][39]} In July 2026, Europa Filmes acquired distribution rights to the film in Brazil.^[40]

Notes

- a. Adélio Bispo, author of the stabbing, will be portrayed as the fictional Adélio Barba.^[3]
